Hi Susan

As per telephone conversation:

Attached is a letter from S. Kellett as well as a letter to the Branch Secretaries of the Organisation.

I have also attached intended correspondence to you for 2006 Annual Returns of the National Office.

As this will be the first year that we will have had to present all National & Branch together I am wondering if we are duplicating and if we should have it all in one database. If this is the case we will not have to state in the Statutory Declaration that there is a copy of Branch Secretaries Annual Returns. I have crossed out Annexures at the moment until I find which is the best way to go. Your assistance would be much appreciated.

Dear Mr Hayden

Re: Annual Return of Information Contained in Records Kept by Organisation – Australian Rail, Tram and Bus Industry Union (AR2006/340)

I am writing in relation to the reporting obligations under s233 of the RAO Schedule - formerly Schedule 1B, now Schedule 1 - of the Workplace Relations Act 1996. This issue arose from a query from your office about what documents needed to be lodged by the National Office. From time to time the Registry revisits particular procedures or approaches with a view to ensuring it reflects as correctly as it can the intent of the legislation, and this was such an opportunity.

I note that for a number of years it has been a practice where the Australian Rail, Tram and Bus Industry Union is concerned that each Branch lodges annual returns of information relating to its members and officeholders directly and separately in the Registry.

There are undoubtedly historical reasons for this. Looking back over the records of the Australian Railways Union I note that the first return of office-holders by a Branch was that of the New South Wales Branch on 10 June 1930. Separate returns of office-holders were lodged by the Victorian and South Australian Branches in 1948 and 1949. This has continued under the various legislative regimes of amendments to the Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1904 and its successor legislation.

I am naturally reluctant to regard as a practical problem what by long practice has been accepted by the Registry but it did occur to me that technically, the obligation to report and lodge under s233 and in accordance with RAO regulation 147 is one that falls on the organisation not its branches.

RAO regulation 150 defines the "prescribed officer for lodging information" as either the secretary or other officer who is required by the rules of the organisation to keep the records mentioned in s230. Under the organisation's rules, both the National Secretary, in Rule 38(vi) and the Branch Secretaries, in Rule 54 (viii), have a responsibility for preparing and keeping files and records required by the Act.

However I do not think that this qualifies the explicit references to the "organisation" in the legislation. An organisation is defined in section 6 of the RAO Schedule as "an organisation registered under this Schedule".

Moreover, the types of some of the records which are itemised in regulation 147, such as 147(a), 147(b), and 147(c) appear to be the types of records about which it would be appropriate for an officer of the whole organisation - rather than of a constituent Branch - to lodge.

I understand that the National Office receives from each Branch copies of the annual return information pertaining to each Branch's members and officeholders which the Branch has prepared. It seems to me that it should present little difficulty if in future this information and the various records were simply collated by the National Office and lodged under cover of the appropriate declarations by the National Secretary.

The Registry has already received information pursuant to s233 from the Western Australian and New South Wales Branches, and Mr Christison and Mr Lewocki have been sent acknowledgements from the Registry. Perhaps the information and records pertaining to the other Branches can be lodged along with the records prepared by the National Office.

I would like to emphasise that the issue is one of strict technical compliance that the organisation might consider is in their best interests to observe, rather than any deficiency in the substance of the information which the organisation and its Branches have lodged in the past.

Your comments would be appreciated. If you would like to discuss this, if you foreshadow any difficulties in adopting the approach I suggest or if you hold an alternative view, please do not hesitate to contact me at the Registry on 8374 6509.

Yours sincerely

Dear Comrade,

RE: ANNUAL RETURN OF INFORMATION
CONTAINED IN RECORDS KEPT BY ORGANISATION

Please find attached a copy of correspondence as received from the Australian Industrial Registry in regards to lodgments of Annual Returns of Information relating to members and office holders of the Organisation.

It is the practice of the RTBU for Branches to submit their lodgments to the AIR separately and then forward a copy to the National office who is then required to lodge a National Union return.

The Registry has now requested that in the Organisations best interests and as an issue of strict technical compliance that in the future Branches send their lodgments to the National Office who will then send a complete lodgment for the whole union to the Registry.

Yours fraternally,

Robert Hayden
