Mr. C. Atkins
Executive Director
The Master Builders' Association of Tasmania
PO Box 992
HOBART TAS 7001

Dear Mr. Atkins,

Re: Election notification - The Master Builders' Association of Tasmania - E2005/73

An examination of the rules of the organisation relating to elections suggests some of those rules are open to more than one interpretation particularly in regard to what the rules currently provide and the organisation's understanding of the rules in relation to the method and timing of elections. For example, whereas the previous rules of the organisation provided for the conduct of elections for the six positions of Members to the State Council representing the General Contractor/Commercial, General Contractor/Civil and Housing Membership Grades to be staggered, the current rules do not.

Under section 189 of Schedule 1B of the Workplace Relations Act 1996, a Registrar must arrange for the conduct of an election by the Australian Electoral Commission if the Registrar is satisfied that an election is required under the rules of organisation. I note that recent election decisions making arrangements for the conduct of elections for a number of requested positions were based on a consideration of the rules of the organisation, the organisation's advice regarding the intent of those rules and previous decisions.

The rules of an organisation should clearly provide for the method of election of offices and the terms of those offices. In particular, if the organisation requires elections to be staggered and/or where the term of office is dependant upon election to another office and the term of office applicable therein, the rules should clearly so provide.

I strongly recommend the organisation alter its rules to clarify the method of election and terms of office for each position for which an election is required.

Yours sincerely,
